Question 2: Who can join the RISE Coalition Public Meetings?

Answer: Any local, state, or federal governmental entity, university, non-profit, private sector, individual, or other interested party is welcome to join the RISE Coalition Public Meeting to hear updates from the RISE Coalition members and share information by participating in the Roundtable discussions.

Question 3: What is the role of Non-Voting Members and how can Non-Voting Members participate in RISE Coalition meetings?

Answer: The RISE Coalition Public Meetings are the venue by which the RISE Coalition voting and non-voting members share information with the public. The Public Meeting is also an opportunity for Non-Voting Members to share information with RISE members about activities, upcoming programs, projects, or other initiatives happening in the North Central Texas region that are related to sustainability and the goals of the RISE Coalition. The Roundtable Agenda Item, included on every Public Meeting Agenda, is meant to provide a venue for this collaboration. Non-voting member organizations are encouraged to provide feedback on what the RISE Coalition is working on. Additionally, the RISE Coalition will host annual workshops or other educational opportunities focused on specific topics of interest. These opportunities are intended to be a collaborative event for a broad audience and focused on a selected target. Non-voting members would have an opportunity to serve as speakers, share specific efforts, provide information, and engage in discussions as it relates to the selected topic. There is no membership fee for Non-Voting Members to participate in the RISE Coalition Public Meetings.

Question 4: How do Non-Voting Members or interested parties share information with the RISE Coalition outside of the quarterly public meeting?

Answer: If voting or non-voting members have information that they would like to share with the RISE Coalition outside of the quarterly Public Meetings, please contact NCTCOG staff at eandd@nctcog.org or (817) 695-9121.
